LINDSAY SPEAKS.THE TARIFF BILL NOT PERFECT BUT A STEP FORWARD.*He Defers to the House in Relation to the Income Tax.

Washington, April 27.—Senator Lindsey was the first Senator to speak this morning. He made a telling blow against Hill and against the policy of the so-called "Conservatives." The galleries on the Democratic side of the chamber are crowded, and those on the Republican side were well filled. He is speaking from the desk recently occupied by Senator Ransom, of North Carolina. Nearly every Democrat Senator is on the floor and he is given the closest attention.

In opening his address Judge Lindsay said: "The Democracy of the country have justly criticised the Wilson bill, because it fails in many respects to cure inequalities and remove oppressive discriminations. Criticism has been even more severe upon the action of the Finance Committee in reporting amendments modifying, in the interests of the manufacturers, some of the provisions of the Wilson bill. But Democrats in every section of the country, with the greatest unanimity, agree that the pending bill, with or without the proposed amendments, is infinitely better than the existing tariff laws and that it is the imperative duty of the Democratic members of this body to pass the bill to a final vote, and at the earliest practicable time remove the uncertainty that aggravates the existing condition of business affairs.

"If, as I believe, and, as in my opinion, a large majority of the people believe, tariff reform is necessary to equilibrate taxation, and is consistent with the highest possible conditions of national prosperity, we should have that reform now, and at once. It will hasten the return of better times, upon an enduring and constitutional basis, and will satisfy the people that prohibitive tariff taxes are no longer to stand in the way of our agricultural products being freely sold in the markets of the world or exacting upon a reasonable basis for commodities necessary for the comforts of that great body of American consumers, who do not and cannot receive the benefits of the bounties and subsidies distributed to the favored few, under the guise of protection."

After reviewing the contest in the National Convention of 1892, and showing the extreme ground taken by the New York delegation under the lead of Frewer, Murphy, Sloane, and Sickles, Judge Lindsey said:

"I am free to say the Wilson bill is not my ideal of real Democratic tariff reform, and the amendments proposed by the Finance Committee are in many respects open to serious criticism. But I realize that we cannot have all we ought to have, nor all the country has a right to expect, by the exercise of power and duty of reforming our system of tariff taxation."

"My objections in the main go to the extreme conservatism, rather than to the radical character of the proposed changes. But in order to secure the passage of a Democratic tariff law, removing some and modifying others of the most odious and oppressive features of existing laws, and opening the door in some respects, to greater freedom of trade, I am ready to sink personal pretensions, and join with my party friends, and all others who agree with us upon this great subject, and at the earliest possible time enact this bill, with all of its imperfections, into a law."

Judge Lindsey followed this declaration by an analysis of census reports, by which he showed that the tariff on imported articles imposed by the Wilson bill was greater than the total wage cost of leading articles of merchandise. Then he said:

"In speaking of taxes on consumption, the senior Senator from New York said that one of their merits is that paid at the will of the consumer in the enhancement of price. If noted, they are all surmounted in detail and self-assessed, with the least inconvenience, at the best time, in Washington, April 26.—President Cleveland is confident that the kickers in the Senate can be beaten, and that the party can pass the bill in the Senate in the next few days. He has written to the White House this morning, the President said, most emphatically that the Tariff Bill will pass the Senate and become law. He believes it would come to a vote in the first or third. Speaking of the outlook for his party, Mr. Cleveland expressed the greatest confidence, and said that the new tariff law would give satisfaction and prosperity to the country, and the Democratic party and successfully stand upon the achievements in the present Congress. There have been internal dissensions and differences as to what duties should be lowered or entirely removed, but these would not survive the passage of the bill.

With reference to the Coxey movement, the President was very severe. He was a serious matter and liable to cause trouble. He entered the press on the act which had been mentioned, and successfully stand upon the achievements in the present Congress.

LEAPED TO DEATH.

J. L. Owens, a Well-Known Man Commits Suicide While On the River.

The Paducah News of the 1st J. L. Owens, of this city, committed suicide in the Cumberland river last night about 11 o'clock by jumping overboard from the ferryboat "Bettie" then en route from Eddyville. The circumstances connected with his disappearance are rather confused, but there seems no doubt in the minds of those who witnessed his leaping into the water that the man did it voluntarily, and that he is now dead beyond a doubt.

The particulars of the tragedy are set out. Yesterday morning when the ferryboat "Bettie" owned by Frank Wyant, of Eddyville, was preparing to leave this wharf for Eddyville, citizens who were personally known to him, said he had no money to pay for his passage. Frank Wyant is a splendid man and has no known enemies.

Yesterday morning evidences were discovered that an attempt had been made to fire the business house of Mr. Rappoole at Salem. Three or four pounds of powder were accidentally discovered in the rear of the building outside, and there were evidences that an effort had been made to put fire to it.

As soon as midnight, while the ferryboat was going by the coal mines of Cumberland over six miles above Southland town, more men approached who walked to the forward guard of a lower deck. Stepping down he availed himself of an opening in the high railing of the steerage instantly leaped head long into the water. The boat of trustees have employed special guards to watch the town at night, and every effort is being made to catch the scoundrels.

The opinion prevails among the people of Salem that the friends or confederates of Parker, who is under arrest for counterfeiting, propose to avenge his arrest and incarceration by the means of fire, and that the effort to burn Rappoole's house, and the burning of the post office is the result so far.

The board of trustees have employed special guards to watch the town at night, and every effort is being made to catch the scoundrels.
